

William F Kay, Coach Builder, Real Estate, and Politician

by

June M Bullivant OAM

© Granville Historical Society Inc

This publication is a guide for researchers -

Researches will need to purchase certificates to prove their lineage.

Table Of Contents

Family View Report for William Kay 1

Family Group Sheet for William Kay 2

Ahnentafel Report for William Kay 8

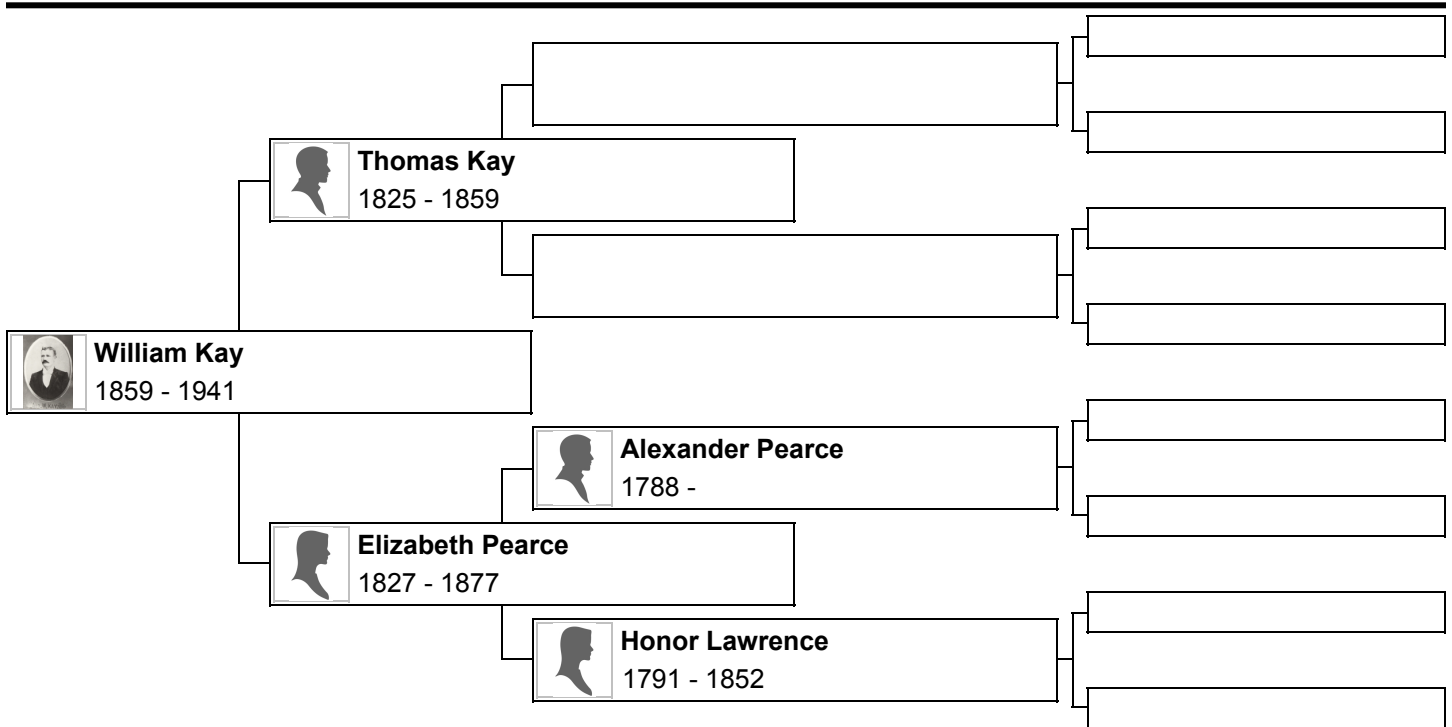

Timeline Report for William Kay 14

Media Usage Report for William Kay 16

Photo Album for William Kay 20

Index 21

Family View Report for William Kay

William Kay

Born: 06 Oct 1859
Campbell's Creek, Victoria, Australia
Died: 10 Dec 1941
Parramatta District Hospital, Parramatta, New So

Lydia Butfield

Born: 18 May 1854
Duck River, Granville, New South Wales, Australi
Died: 03 Aug 1931
Manly, New South Wales, Australia.

Marriage: 1886 in Central Cumberland, New South Wales

Children:	Sex	Birth	Death
Albert Horatio Kay	M	13 Mar 1889 Granville, New South Wales, Australia	09 Aug 1893 Footscray, Victoria
Norman Federal Kay	M	Mar 1897 Granville, New South Wales, Australia	11 Jun 1904 Granville, New South Wales, Australia
Rosalind Sarah Kay	F	1891 Footscray, Victoria, Australia	05 Nov 1894 Parramatta, New South Wales, Australia
Amy Cordelia Butfield Kay	F	08 Jun 1887 Granville, New South Wales, Australia	07 Apr 1963 Parramatta, New South Wales, Australia
William Shakespeare Kay	M	18 Aug 1894 Granville, New South Wales, Australia	20 Apr 1981 Manly, New South Wales, Australia.
Thelma Agnes Granvilline Kay	F	10 Jan 1903 Granville, New South Wales, Australia	Aft. 1941
Stanley Broughton Kay	M	28 Feb 1910 Granville New South Wales	04 May 2005 Sydney, New South Wales, Australia

Family Group Sheet for William Kay

Husband: William Kay

Birth: 06 Oct 1859 in Campbell's Creek, Victoria, Australia; Victorian Gold Fields
 Marriage: 1886 in Central Cumberland, New South Wales
 Death: 10 Dec 1941 in Parramatta District Hospital, Parramatta, New South Wales, Australia
 Father: Thomas Kay
 Mother: Elizabeth Pearce

Wife: Lydia Butfield

Birth: 18 May 1854 in Duck River, Granville, New South Wales, Australia
 Death: 03 Aug 1931 in Manly, New South Wales, Australia.
 Burial: 04 Aug 1931 in Rookwood Cemetery, NSW
 Father: George Frederick Butfield
 Mother: Sarah Ann Norford

Children:

1 Name: Albert Horatio Kay
 M Birth: 13 Mar 1889 in Granville, New South Wales, Australia
 Death: 09 Aug 1893 in Footscray, Victoria

2 Name: Norman Federal Kay
 M Birth: Mar 1897 in Granville, New South Wales, Australia
 Death: 11 Jun 1904 in Granville, New South Wales, Australia

3 Name: Rosalind Sarah Kay
 F Birth: 1891 in Footscray, Victoria, Australia
 Death: 05 Nov 1894 in Parramatta, New South Wales, Australia; Buried with grandparents St John's Cemetery, Parramatta, New South Wales, Australia.

4 F	Name: Amy Cordelia Butfield Kay Birth: 08 Jun 1887 in Granville, New South Wales, Australia Death: 07 Apr 1963 in Parramatta, New South Wales, Australia Burial: 09 Apr 1963 in Rookwood Cemetery Spouse: Ernest Reginald Yorke
5 M	Name: William Shakespeare Kay Birth: 18 Aug 1894 in Granville, New South Wales, Australia Death: 20 Apr 1981 in Manly, New South Wales, Australia. Burial: 23 Apr 1981
6 F	Name: Thelma Agnes Granvilline Kay Birth: 10 Jan 1903 in Granville, New South Wales, Australia Death: Aft. 1941 Spouse: Frederick Wentworth Olson
7 M	Name: Stanley Broughton Kay Birth: 28 Feb 1910 in Granville New South Wales Marriage: 1939 in Hurstville, New South Wales, Australia Death: 04 May 2005 in Sydney, New South Wales, Australia Spouse: Lorenz Emily Cox

Notes:

William Kay

Coroners Report.

Died from injuries received when struck down by a motor car.

William Kay was born 6th October 1859 to Thomas Kay and Elizabeth Pearce, he married Lydia Butfield in 1886, they had the following children who were born in Granville, Amy Cordelia Butfield 1887, Albert Horatio 1889, Rosalind Sarah, William Shakespeare 1894, Norman Federal 1897, Thelma A G 1903, and Stanley Broughton 1910.

When Elijah Brown left Granville in 1864 the settlement was without a horse shoeing forge until the coming of William F Kay in 1887. Mr Kay, a native of Victoria with many other was attracted to Granville by the arrival of Hudson Brothers and their engineering works in the early eighties. A Blacksmith he worked from some time after his arrival with this firm, but in 1887 he decided to start a business of his own.

To this end he built a shop and forge on the south side of Sydney Road near the south east corner of Kemp Street. In 1903 he took up land on the south west corner of Sydney Road and Kemp Street and built a large commodious place of business into which he removed and continued his trade of horse shoeing, general blacksmithing and coach building under more favourable facilities, this was called the Federal Coach Factory.

The western end of the building was rented as a wood, coal and general produce store to Edgar Thackery who had previously owned the business which was situated on the north eastern corner of Carlton Street and South Parade (now Railway Parade), this site was then used to built the Government Saving Bank in 1912.

In 1906 Mr Kay having tired of blacksmithing, turned his attention to auctioneering and estate sales, sold his trade, rented one of the newly built shops in Good Street and opened a Land and Estate agency, his business on Sydney Road was leased to William Littlefield who was still trading in 1918.

Mr William F Kay was an alderman on Granville Council and occupied the Mayor's chair in 1902. It was during this time the Rectory for St Mark's Anglican Church was being built William Kay, Mayor was on the foundation stone. William Kay was a member of the NSW Lodge Sir Walter Scott 122, serving as Master in 1896-1897 when the Lodge was meeting at Granville Town Hall.

©June M Bullivant OAM

Notes: (con't)

LORD CLYDE.

:The fortnightly meeting of Lord Clyde Lodge, No. 71, P.A.F.S., was held at the School of Arts, Granville, on the 10th instant. There was a large attendance of members, Bro. T. H. Phipps presiding. This lodge is in a strong financial position. Arrangements were made for a social, and a strong committee formed.

Our Surroundings.-GranvilleIts Potentialities- Its Industries and Trades -Its Representative Men. WILLIAM KAY AND THE FEDERAL COACH FACTORY.

(By EDWIN HOWELL.)

EVER since the coming to manhood of the first generation of the colonial born, pessimists prophesied that "no good could come out of Nazareth," and for a time it did certainly seem that the prophecy would be verified and that Australia would have to call on the mother country for men of brains not only to guide all her political, financial and educational matters, but even to fill the ranks of her artisans and superior workmen; and this became all the more apparent when so much of the time and energy of her sons were devoted to purely athletic pursuits; but gradually the feeling began to be engendered that the Australian youth was fitted for something beyond horse-racing and field sports, and to-day no young country furnishes such a galaxy of talent in the field of literature, art and professional pursuits as Australasia.

With each passing year it began to be borne in on the native-born youths that a time must arrive when they would have to take their places on the stage of the world and that it behoved them to prepare manfully and to the extent of their ability to play the parts that would be allotted them in life's drama and the bringing forward of their native country, and so, by degrees, the better part began to be adopted and Australian names began to take a place in the world's lists of educated men, by no means contemptible, till now, only after a few years' devotion to study and the sciences, we can proudly point to those who, after a competition against the world, have been, as it were, "hall marked" and labelled the best quality. No doubt the granting of self-government to the colonies and the consequent establishment of colonial houses of assembly have had much to do with the bringing to the surface such youths as secured for the future of Australia the consideration it deserved, and the result has been that we can most assuredly point with pride, not only to scientists and literary men, but to statesmen and orators as well.

Seeing that the municipal arena is in most cases simply a training ground or nursery to the higher plane - that of politics and the Lower House, very many of the colonial youths awoke to the necessity of entering that arena, and with that object, so fought for a means to an end, that wherever population justified municipalities and boroughs began to spring into existence and to afford them the opportunity of feeling their feet and of subsequently taking flight to the Assembly, when their previous training stands them in good stead.

Among the municipalities that have been springing up like Jonah's gourd all round Parramatta, none has advanced so rapidly as that of Granville, and probably no name that has been identified with that municipality for the last decade has commanded more respect than that of William Kay, its present Mayor. Born in Campbell's Creek, near Castlemaine, in Victoria, in 1859, Mr. Kay, who was intended for a dominie, received a suitable education in the leading school at that place. Having a penchant for poetry, Longfellow's famous poem of the Village Blacksmith so enamoured his youthful mind that in opposition to the wishes of his parents he had himself apprenticed to a coachbuilder at Edington, and after a service of five years went to Melbourne, where he became associated with the firm of Bevan and Sons, of the Railway Carriage Works.

Wishing to see the world, he shortly after, when 23 years of age, came to Sydney, with the idea of proceeding to San Francisco, but receiving an offer from R. D. Ritchie, of the well known carriage works at Auburn, elected to settle down for a time in Parramatta, leaving Ritchie's shortly after to join the Clyde Engineering firm, with which he was connected for nearly five years. In 1887, having thoroughly become seized of the truth of the aphorism which sets forth that "there is a tide in the affairs of man which taken at the flood leads on to fortune," and inclining to the opinion that there was a great future for Granville, our subject commenced business on his own account in a little shop a short distance from his present place of business on the Sydney-road.

Notes: (con't)

With the growth of business his modest smithy began to expand, and two and a half years ago his sterling work and the reputation which comes of honesty and straight forwardness necessitated the building of his present premises. In 1887, two years after the proclamation of Granville as a borough, he was requisitioned to represent East Ward in the Council and elected unopposed. A visit to Melbourne becoming imperative he resigned his seat, but four years after returned to Granville and, re- purchasing the business which he had sold, has continued to reside there.

On three separate occasions he has represented the ratepayers in the Council, and in February last his merits as a councillor were acknowledged by his induction into the mayoral chair. Four years prior to that he was nominated for the chair, but lost by one vote. During his tenure as councillor he has consistently studied the interests of the borough and has always been in prominent evidence when improvements or requirements of the place have been necessary. A great admirer of Shakespeare, it is not at all surprising that he should feel interested in the dramatic affairs and consequently he was for years a prominent member and a leader of the Granville Dramatic Club.

When the rapid growth of business necessitated the building of a place commensurate with his requirements, he purchased a piece of land 100 feet square with a frontage to the Sydney-road, on which the works known as the Federal Carriage Factory now stand. With colonisation and settlement came the demand for vehicles something more presentable and desirable than the primitive carts and drays familiar to those whom the fever and turmoil incident to the discovery of gold brought to our shores, and with the growth and development of trade which naturally ensued and the putting together of wealth by the class who knew how to take advantage of the tide, a desire for ease and luxury gradually supervened over the objects of practicality and desirableness.

Men, who, a few years ago, were satisfied with locomotion in vehicles which immeasurably eclipsed those of the primitive "gold days," began to condemn the then new state of things; and, with comparative affluence, were bitten with the mania for phtotons, barouches, landaus, and such descriptions of vehicles ; and this mania, in turn, gave birth to a class of artificers and designers, that, to-day, can hold their own against the world. When acquiring a thorough knowledge of his trade, Mr. Kay naturally gained an insight into such work ; but, finding a field for the production and disposal of an article that would combine the extreme of utility with a fair modicum of show, he, in a measure, devoted himself to the building of a class of sulkies which have far and away excelled most articles of the same description.

This speciality, the building of special long distance vehicles necesitated the disruption of partnership and thence forth having no one to consult he carried out certain views which gave him some-what of an advantage over others. To mark the reputation of his work it is only needful to state that he sends sulkies to Corowa. His thousand mile long-distance axle is beautifully balanced, possessing a wide seat so that no jolting ensues, the wood speck and dash boards and walnut panels of a dark green, picked with light green and carmine, trimmed with solid buffalo leather. Penrith, Liverpool and other places within a radius of 10 miles are responsible for many first prizes. Two fires are constantly going, and even in these days he employs a very fair number of hands. That he is popular needs no explanation, and I look to see some particularly good work at the forthcoming election.

Cumberland Argus and Fruitgrowers Advocate Saturday 30th August 1902 page 8

WILLIAM KAY - ACTOR, BLACKSMITH, FARM SALESMAN AND MAYOR OF GRANVILLE

In 1906, William F. Kay, former Granville Mayor and one-time Shakespearean actor, came to the conclusion that the growing popularity of the horseless carriage would inevitably kill off his blacksmith and coach-building business. So he disposed of the business and went into real estate. What he didn't foresee was that a motor car would kill him too. On the morning of Wednesday 10 December 1941, 82-year-old William was knocked down by a car while crossing Church Street at Parramatta near Dixon Street. He was taken to Parramatta Hospital but died about two hours later.i

William Kay was born in 1859 at Castlemaine, Victoria, the son of a gold miner. He was a blacksmith by trade, but for a year or two as a young man enjoyed a brief career on the stage as a professional actor. This left him a devoted fan of William Shakespeare for the rest of his life, and he was for a time executive officer of the Shakespeare Society in Sydney. However Hudson Brothers hired him as a blacksmith in 1882 to work in their new engineering works in Granville, along with 19 smiths they had brought out from Scotland. The Scots were keen footballers and formed the nucleus of a new soccer club, founded in 1883. William Kay accepted the first of his many voluntary community positions to become the club's honorary secretary. He was just 24 years of age.ⁱⁱ

Notes: (con't)

A few years later, in 1886, William married a local girl, Lydia Butfield, in St Mark's Church of England. When Lydia gave birth to five children - three boys and two girls - the couple chose some interesting given names for their offspring. The eldest boy was christened William Shakspeare [sic] Kay. He would become a solicitor, an alderman on Granville Council for more than 10 years, and Mayor of Granville in 1927. Another son was named Norman Federal, after Kay's Federal Forge blacksmithing business, and a daughter was christened Thelma Agnes Granvilline Kay.ⁱⁱⁱ

With his wife pregnant with their first child, Kay decided to leave Hudsons and start his own blacksmith's business in 1887 on Sydney Road [Parramatta Road] near Kemp Street [now Rowell Street]. At about the same time he joined the newly-established Granville branch of the Political Protectionist Association, and was elected honorary secretary. Harry Richardson, Granville's mayor in 1886 and later a New South Wales railways commissioner, was the first president.

William began to dabble in local politics in 1889 when he was elected to Granville Council, but resigned after serving only six months to "take up a position in another colony". After his return to Granville, he was again elected to the council in 1895, unseating the incumbent John Mahony. His success encouraged him to stand as a Protectionist candidate for the seat of Granville in the July 1895 Legislative Assembly election, but he withdrew 11 days before the poll. His withdrawal, he said, was due to "the phenomenal rush of business" for his Federal Forge, particularly in coach building.

[Kay, it must be said, missed no opportunity to generate publicity for his business enterprises] He stood down at the 1898 council election, saying he didn't have sufficient time for council affairs because of the heavy demands of his business. But he was back on the council three years later and was elected to a 12-month term as mayor in 1902.^{iv}

William Kay opened his real estate office, the Granville Property Exchange, in Good Street on 5 February 1906 and within three weeks was telling the Cumberland Argus that "business is brisk".

In March he gained the appointment of Returning Officer for the Granville electoral district, and presided over Legislative Assembly elections in 1907 and 1910. His property agency thrived during the development boom before World War One, and in 1911 he announced that the business had outgrown Granville and he was moving his headquarters into the city. At about the same time, he and Lydia left Granville for Manly. They lived in one of the flats in a small block they had purchased in Augusta Road, within walking distance of the ferry wharf. He took up bowls, was a vice-president of the Manly club for several years, and a life member of the Parramatta club.

From about 1917 he specialised in farm sales, and operated from several city addresses from time to time, including Pitt Street, Hunter Street, George Street, and in the same building as his son's legal practice, Culwulla Chambers at 67 Castlereagh Street. After his wife passed away in 1931, William moved to Parramatta where he spent the rest of his life until that unfortunate accident with the motor car in December 1941.^v

© Colin Humphreys

i Obituary, Cumberland Argus and Fruitgrowers' Advocate, 17 December 1941, p. 2.

Lydia Butfield

MRS. W. F. KAY.

Mrs. Lydia Kay, formerly Mayoress of Granville, and wife of Mr. W. P. Kay, died at her residence at Manly recently. Mrs. Kay, who resided at Granville for about 40 years, was Mayoress on several occasions. She took part in the work for St. Mark's Church at Granville, and the Granville branch of the Red Cross Society, and the Auburn District Hospital. She is survived by Mr. Kay, two sons, and two daughters. The sons are Alderman William Kay, of Granville, and Mr. Stanley Kay. The remains were cremated at Rookwood Crematorium following a service which was held at the Manly Methodist Church.

Notes: (con't)

Ancestors of William Kay

Generation 1

1. William Kay, son of Thomas Kay and Elizabeth Pearce Kay, was born on 06 Oct 1859 in Campbell's Creek, Victoria, Australia (Victorian Gold Fields). He died on 10 Dec 1941 in Parramatta District Hospital, Parramatta, New South Wales, Australia. He married Lydia Butfield Kay in 1886 in Central Cumberland, New South Wales. She was born on 18 May 1854 in Duck River, Granville, New South Wales, Australia. She died on 03 Aug 1931 in Manly, New South Wales, Australia..

Notes for William Kay:

Coroners Report.

Died from injuries received when struck down by a motor car.

William Kay was born 6th October 1859 to Thomas Kay and Elizabeth Pearce, he married Lydia Butfield in 1886, they had the following children who were born in Granville, Amy Cordelia Butfield 1887, Albert Horatio 1889, Rosalind Sarah, William Shakespeare 1894, Norman Federal 1897, Thelma A G 1903, and Stanley Broughton 1910.

When Elijah Brown left Granville in 1864 the settlement was without a horse shoeing forge until the coming of William F Kay in 1887. Mr Kay, a native of Victoria with many other was attracted to Granville by the arrival of Hudson Brothers and their engineering works in the early eighties. A Blacksmith he worked from some time after his arrival with this firm, but in 1887 he decided to start a business of his own.

To this end he built a shop and forge on the south side of Sydney Road near the south east corner of Kemp Street. In 1903 he took up land on the south west corner of Sydney Road and Kemp Street and built a large commodious place of business into which he removed and continued his trade of horse shoeing, general blacksmithing and coach building under more favourable facilities, this was called the Federal Coach Factory.

The western end of the building was rented as a wood, coal and general produce store to Edgar Thackery who had previously owned the business which was situated on the north eastern corner of Carlton Street and South Parade (now Railway Parade), this site was then used to built the Government Saving Bank in 1912.

In 1906 Mr Kay having tired of blacksmithing, turned his attention to auctioneering and estate sales, sold his trade, rented one of the newly built shops in Good Street and opened a Land and Estate agency, his business on Sydney Road was leased to William Littlefield who was still trading in 1918.

Mr William F Kay was an alderman on Granville Council and occupied the Mayor's chair in 1902. It was during this time the Rectory for St Mark's Anglican Church was being built William Kay, Mayor was on the foundation stone. William Kay was a member of the NSW Lodge Sir Walter Scott 122, serving as Master in 1896-1897 when the Lodge was meeting at Granville Town Hall.

©June M Bullivant OAM

LORD CLYDE.

:The fortnightly meeting of Lord Clyde Lodge, No. 71, P.A.F.S., was held at the School of Arts, Granville, on the 10th instant. There was a large attendance of members, Bro. T. H. Phipps presiding. This lodge is in a strong financial position. Arrangements were made for a social, and a strong committee formed.

Our Surroundings.-Granville

Its Potentialities- Its Industries and Trades -Its Representative Men. WILLIAM KAY AND THE FEDERAL COACH FACTORY.

(By EDWIN HOWELL.)

Ancestors of William Kay

EVER since the coming to manhood of the first generation of the colonial born, pessimists prophesied that " no good could come out of Nazareth," and for a time it did certainly seem that the prophecy would be verified and that Australia would have to call on the mother country for men of brains not only to guide all her political, financial and educational matters, but even to fill the ranks of her artisans and superior workmen; and this became all the more apparent when so much of the time and energy of her sons were devoted to purely athletic pursuits; but gradually the feeling began to be engendered that the Australian youth was fitted for something beyond horse-racing and field sports, and to-day no young country furnishes such a galaxy of talent in the field of literature, art and professional pursuits as Australasia.

With each passing year it began to be borne in on the native-born youths that a time must arrive when they would have to take their places on the stage of the world and that it behoved them to prepare manfully and to the extent of their ability to play the parts that would be allotted them in life's drama and the bringing forward of their native country, and so, by degrees, the better part began to be adopted and Australian names began to take a place in the world's lists of educated men, by no means contemptible, till now, only after a few years' devotion to study and the sciences, we can proudly point to those who, after a competition against the world, have been, as it were, " hall marked " and labelled the best quality. No doubt the granting of self-government to the colonies and the consequent establishment of colonial houses of assembly have had much to do with the bringing to the surface such youths as secured for the future of Australia the consideration it deserved, and the result has been that we can most assuredly point with pride, not only to scientists and literary men, but to statesmen and orators as well.

Seeing that the municipal arena is in most cases simply a training ground or nursery to the higher plane - that of politics and the Lower House, very many of the colonial youths awoke to the necessity of entering that arena, and with that object, so fought for a means to an end, that wherever population justified municipalities and boroughs began to spring into existence and to afford them the opportunity of feeling their feet and of subsequently taking flight to the Assembly, when their previous training stands them in good stead.

Among the municipalities that have been springing up like Jonah's gourd all round Parramatta, none has advanced so rapidly as that of Granville, and probably no name that has been identified with that municipality for the last decade has commanded more respect than that of William Kay, its present Mayor. Born in Campbell's Creek, near Castlemaine, in Victoria, in 1859, Mr. Kay, who was intended for a dominie, received a suitable education in the leading school at that place. Having a penchant for poetry, Longfellow's famous poem of the Village Blacksmith so enamoured his youthful mind that in opposition to the wishes of his parents he had himself apprenticed to a coachbuilder at Edington, and after a service of five years went to Melbourne, where he became associated with the firm of Bevan and Sons, of the Railway Carriage Works.

Wishing to see the world, he shortly after, when 23 years of age, came to Sydney, with the idea of proceeding to San Francisco, but receiving an offer from R. D. Ritchie, of the well known carriage works at Auburn, elected to settle down for a time in Parramatta, leaving Ritchie's shortly after to join the Clyde Engineering firm, with which he was connected for nearly five years. In 1887, having thoroughly become seized of the truth of the aphorism which sets forth that " there is a tide in the affairs of man which taken at the flood leads on to fortune," and inclining to the opinion that there was a great future for Granville, our subject commenced business on his own account in a little shop a short distance from his present place of business on the Sydney-road.

With the growth of business his modest smithy began to expand, and two and a half years ago his sterling work and the reputation which comes of honesty and straight forwardness necessitated the building of his present premises. In 1887, two years after the proclamation of Granville as a borough, he was requisitioned to represent East Ward in the Council and elected unopposed. A visit to Melbourne becoming imperative he resigned his seat, but four years after returned to Granville and, re- purchasing the business which he had sold, has continued to reside there.

Ancestors of William Kay

On three separate occasions he has represented the ratepayers in the Council, and in February last his merits as a councillor were acknowledged by his induction into the mayoral chair. Four years prior to that he was nominated for the chair, but lost by one vote. During his tenure as councillor he has consistently studied the interests of the borough and has always been in prominent evidence when improvements or requirements of the place have been necessary. A great admirer of Shakespeare, it is not at all surprising that he should feel interested in the dramatic affairs and consequently he was for years a prominent member and a leader of the Granville Dramatic Club.

When the rapid growth of business necessitated the building of a place commensurate with his requirements, he purchased a piece of land 100 feet square with a frontage to the Sydney-road, on which the works known as the Federal Carriage Factory now stand. With colonisation and settlement came the demand for vehicles something more presentable and desirable than the primitive carts and drays familiar to those whom the fever and turmoil incident to the discovery of gold brought to our shores, and with the growth and development of trade which naturally ensued and the putting together of wealth by the class who knew how to take advantage of the tide, a desire for ease and luxury gradually supervened over the objects of practicality and desirableness.

Men, who, a few years ago, were satisfied with locomotion in vehicles which immeasurably eclipsed those of the primitive "gold days," began to condemn the then new state of things; and, with comparative affluence, were bitten with the mania for phatons, barouches, landaus, and such descriptions of vehicles ; and this mania, in turn, gave birth to a class of artificers and designers, that, to-day, can hold their own against the world. When acquiring a thorough knowledge of his trade, Mr. Kay naturally gained an insight into such work ; but, finding a field for the production and disposal of an article that would combine the extreme of utility with a fair modicum of show, he, in a measure, devoted himself to the building of a class of sulkies which have far and away excelled most articles of the same description.

This speciality, the building of special long distance vehicles necessitated the disruption of partnership and thence forth having no one to consult he carried out certain views which gave him some-what of an advantage over others. To mark the reputation of his work it is only needful to state that he sends sulkies to Corowa. His thousand mile long-distance axle is beautifully balanced, possessing a wide seat so that no jolting ensues, the wood speck and dash boards and walnut panels of a dark green, picked with light green and carmine, trimmed with solid buffalo leather. Penrith, Liverpool and other places within a radius of 10 miles are responsible for many first prizes. Two fires are constantly going, and even in these days he employs a very fair number of hands. That he is popular needs no explanation, and I look to see some particularly good work at the forthcoming election.

Cumberland Argus and Fruitgrowers Advocate Saturday 30th August 1902 page 8

WILLIAM KAY - ACTOR, BLACKSMITH, FARM SALESMAN AND MAYOR OF GRANVILLE

In 1906, William F. Kay, former Granville Mayor and one-time Shakespearean actor, came to the conclusion that the growing popularity of the horseless carriage would inevitably kill off his blacksmith and coach-building business. So he disposed of the business and went into real estate. What he didn't foresee was that a motor car would kill him too. On the morning of Wednesday 10 December 1941, 82-year-old William was knocked down by a car while crossing Church Street at Parramatta near Dixon Street. He was taken to Parramatta Hospital but died about two hours later.i

Ancestors of William Kay

William Kay was born in 1859 at Castlemaine, Victoria, the son of a gold miner. He was a blacksmith by trade, but for a year or two as a young man enjoyed a brief career on the stage as a professional actor. This left him a devoted fan of William Shakespeare for the rest of his life, and he was for a time executive officer of the Shakespeare Society in Sydney. However Hudson Brothers hired him as a blacksmith in 1882 to work in their new engineering works in Granville, along with 19 smiths they had brought out from Scotland. The Scots were keen footballers and formed the nucleus of a new soccer club, founded in 1883. William Kay accepted the first of his many voluntary community positions to become the club's honorary secretary. He was just 24 years of age.ii

A few years later, in 1886, William married a local girl, Lydia Butfield, in St Mark's Church of England. When Lydia gave birth to five children - three boys and two girls - the couple chose some interesting given names for their offspring. The eldest boy was christened William Shakspeare [sic] Kay. He would become a solicitor, an alderman on Granville Council for more than 10 years, and Mayor of Granville in 1927. Another son was named Norman Federal, after Kay's Federal Forge blacksmithing business, and a daughter was christened Thelma Agnes Granvilline Kay.iii

With his wife pregnant with their first child, Kay decided to leave Hudsons and start his own blacksmith's business in 1887 on Sydney Road [Parramatta Road] near Kemp Street [now Rowell Street]. At about the same time he joined the newly-established Granville branch of the Political Protectionist Association, and was elected honorary secretary. Harry Richardson, Granville's mayor in 1886 and later a New South Wales railways commissioner, was the first president.

William began to dabble in local politics in 1889 when he was elected to Granville Council, but resigned after serving only six months to "take up a position in another colony". After his return to Granville, he was again elected to the council in 1895, unseating the incumbent John Mahony. His success encouraged him to stand as a Protectionist candidate for the seat of Granville in the July 1895 Legislative Assembly election, but he withdrew 11 days before the poll. His withdrawal, he said, was due to "the phenomenal rush of business" for his Federal Forge, particularly in coach building.

[Kay, it must be said, missed no opportunity to generate publicity for his business enterprises] He stood down at the 1898 council election, saying he didn't have sufficient time for council affairs because of the heavy demands of his business. But he was back on the council three years later and was elected to a 12-month term as mayor in 1902.iv William Kay opened his real estate office, the Granville Property Exchange, in Good Street on 5 February 1906 and within three weeks was telling the Cumberland Argus that "business is brisk".

In March he gained the appointment of Returning Officer for the Granville electoral district, and presided over Legislative Assembly elections in 1907 and 1910. His property agency thrived during the development boom before World War One, and in 1911 he announced that the business had outgrown Granville and he was moving his headquarters into the city. At about the same time, he and Lydia left Granville for Manly. They lived in one of the flats in a small block they had purchased in Augusta Road, within walking distance of the ferry wharf. He took up bowls, was a vice-president of the Manly club for several years, and a life member of the Parramatta club.

From about 1917 he specialised in farm sales, and operated from several city addresses from time to time, including Pitt Street, Hunter Street, George Street, and in the same building as his son's legal practice, Culwulla Chambers at 67 Castlereagh Street. After his wife passed away in 1931, William moved to Parramatta where he spent the rest of his life until that unfortunate accident with the motor car in December 1941.v

Ancestors of William Kay

© Colin Humphreys

i Obituary, Cumberland Argus and Fruitgrowers' Advocate, 17 December 1941, p. 2.

Notes for Lydia Butfield Kay:

MRS. W. F. KAY.

Mrs. Lydia Kay, formerly Mayoress of Granville, and wife of Mr. W. P. Kay, died at her residence at Manly recently. Mrs. Kay, who resided at Granville for about 40 years, was Mayoress on several occasions. She took part in the work for St. Mark's Church at Granville, and the Granville branch of the Red Cross Society, and the Auburn District Hospital. She is survived by Mr. Kay, two sons, and two daughters. The sons are Alderman William Kay, of Granville, and Mr. Stanley Kay. The remains were cremated at Rookwood Crematorium following a service which was held at the Manly Methodist Church.

Generation 2

2. Thomas Kay was born in 1825 in Yorkshire, England. He died on 15 Nov 1859 in Campbell's Creek, Victoria, Australia. He married Elizabeth Pearce Kay on 01 Sep 1852 in Illogan, Cornwall, England.
3. Elizabeth Pearce Kay, daughter of Alexander Pearce and Honor Lawrence Pearce, was born in 1827 in Illogan, Cornwall, England. She died on 30 Nov 1877 in Campbell's Creek, Victoria, Australia.

Elizabeth Pearce Kay and Thomas Kay had the following children:

- i. Alice Kay was born on 24 Apr 1858 in Campbell's Creek. She died in 1859 in Campbells Creek, Victoria, Australia.
1. ii. William Kay was born on 06 Oct 1859 in Campbell's Creek, Victoria, Australia (Victorian Gold Fields). He died on 10 Dec 1941 in Parramatta District Hospital, Parramatta, New South Wales, Australia. He married Lydia Butfield Kay in 1886 in Central Cumberland, New South Wales. She was born on 18 May 1854 in Duck River, Granville, New South Wales, Australia. She died on 03 Aug 1931 in Manly, New South Wales, Australia..

Generation 3

6. Alexander Pearce was born in 1788. He married Honor Lawrence Pearce.
7. Honor Lawrence Pearce was born in 1791. She died in 1852.

Honor Lawrence Pearce and Alexander Pearce had the following child:

3. i. Elizabeth Pearce Kay was born in 1827 in Illogan, Cornwall, England. She died on 30 Nov 1877 in Campbell's Creek, Victoria, Australia. She married Thomas Kay on 01 Sep 1852 in Illogan, Cornwall, England. He was born in 1825 in Yorkshire, England. He died on 15 Nov 1859 in Campbell's Creek, Victoria, Australia. She married Stephen Jeffery in Sep 1852 in Illogan, Cornwall, England. He was born in

Ancestors of William Kay

1830 in Illogan, Cornwall, England. He died on 17 Jan 1856 in Campbell's Creek, Victoria, Australia (Buried Campbell's Creek Cemetery, Victoria). She married Charles "Elizabeth Kay" Glasson in 1861 in Campbells Creek, Victoria Australia. He was born in 1836 in Illogan, Cornwall, England. He died on 03 Jul 1906 in Campbells Creek, Victoria, Australia.

Prepared By:

Preparer:

Phone:

Email:

Address:

Timeline Report for William Kay

	Yr/Age	Event	Date/Place/Description
	1854	Birth (Spouse) Lydia Butfield	18 May 1854 Duck River, Granville, New South Wales, Australia
	1858	Birth (Sister) Alice Kay	24 Apr 1858 Campbell's Creek
	1859	Birth	06 Oct 1859 Campbell's Creek, Victoria, Australia; Victorian Gold Fields
	1859 1 mos	Death (Father) Thomas Kay	15 Nov 1859 Campbell's Creek, Victoria, Australia
	1877 18	Death (Mother) Elizabeth Pearce	30 Nov 1877 Campbell's Creek, Victoria, Australia
	1886 26	Marriage Lydia Butfield	1886 Central Cumberland, New South Wales
	1887 27	Birth (Daughter) Amy Cordelia Butfield Kay	08 Jun 1887 Granville, New South Wales, Australia
	1889 29	Birth (Son) Albert Horatio Kay	13 Mar 1889 Granville, New South Wales, Australia
	1891 31	Birth (Daughter) Rosalind Sarah Kay	1891 Footscray, Victoria, Australia
	1893 33	Death (Son) Albert Horatio Kay	09 Aug 1893 Footscray, Victoria
	1894 34	Birth (Son) William Shakespeare Kay	18 Aug 1894 Granville, New South Wales, Australia
	1894 35	Death (Daughter) Rosalind Sarah Kay	05 Nov 1894 Parramatta, New South Wales, Australia; Buried with grandparents St John's Cemetery, Parramatta, New South Wales, Australia.
	1897 37	Birth (Son) Norman Federal Kay	Mar 1897 Granville, New South Wales, Australia
	1903 43	Birth (Daughter) Thelma Agnes Granvilline Kay	10 Jan 1903 Granville, New South Wales, Australia
	1904 44	Death (Son) Norman Federal Kay	11 Jun 1904 Granville, New South Wales, Australia
	1910 50	Birth (Son) Stanley Broughton Kay	28 Feb 1910 Granville New South Wales
	1912 52	Residence	1912 Manly and Wentworth, Cumberland
	1931 71	Death (Spouse) Lydia Butfield	03 Aug 1931 Manly, New South Wales, Australia.
	1939 79	Marriage (Son) Stanley Broughton Kay	1939 Hurstville, New South Wales, Australia

1941	Death (Daughter)	Aft. 1941
81	Thelma Agnes Granvilline Kay

1941	Death	10 Dec 1941
82		Parramatta District Hospital, Parramatta, New South Wales, Australia

Media Usage Report

AllCombined_M&M_Clnnes_TimminsM&M

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16
Media\AllCombined_M&M_Clnnes_TimminsM&M.xls

[not linked to people, facts, or sources]

Aloha Private Hospital 34 Phillip Street Parramatta - Willow Grove birth Ian Broughton Kay Panoramio

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Aloha Private Hospital 34 Phillip Street Parramatta - Willow Grove birth Ian Broughton Kay Panoramio.jpg

Person: Kay, Ian Broughton

Aloha Private hospital 34 Phillip Street, Parramatta

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Aloha Private hospital 34 Phillip Street, Parramatta.jpg

Person: Kay, Ian Broughton

Amy Cordelia Butfield Kay- Susan Thompson

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Amy Cordelia Butfield Kay- Susan Thompson.jpg

Person: Kay, Amy Cordelia Butfield

Amy Cordelia Butfield Kay- Susan Thompson_InPixio

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Amy Cordelia Butfield Kay- Susan Thompson_InPixio.jpg

Person: Kay, Amy Cordelia Butfield

Australia, Electoral Rolls, 1903-1980 - Albert Gordon Glasson

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Australia, Electoral Rolls, 1903-1980 - Albert Gordon Glasson.jpg

Source Citation: Ancestry.com, Australia, Electoral Rolls, 1903-1980 (Provo, UT, USA, Ancestry.com Operations, Inc., 2010), Ancestry.com, Record for Albert Gordon Glasson.
<http://search.ancestry.com.au/cgi-bin/sse.dll?db=1207&h=15378282&indiv=try>.

Australia, Electoral Rolls, 1903-1980 - Stanley Broughton Kay

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Australia, Electoral Rolls, 1903-1980 - Stanley Broughton Kay.jpg

Source Citation: Ancestry.com, Australia, Electoral Rolls, 1903-1980 (Provo, UT, USA, Ancestry.com Operations, Inc., 2010), Ancestry.com, Record for Stanley Broughton Kay.
<http://search.ancestry.com.au/cgi-bin/sse.dll?db=1207&h=24696725&indiv=try>.

Australia, Electoral Rolls, 1903-1980 - William Richard Manks

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Australia, Electoral Rolls, 1903-1980 - William Richard Manks.jpg

Source Citation: Ancestry.com, Australia, Electoral Rolls, 1903-1980 (Provo, UT, USA, Ancestry.com Operations, Inc., 2010), Ancestry.com, Record for William Richard Manks.
<http://search.ancestry.com.au/cgi-bin/sse.dll?db=1207&h=25513754&indiv=try>.

Australia, Electoral Rolls, 1903-1980 - William Richard Manks

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Australia, Electoral Rolls, 1903-1980 - William Richard Manks(1).jpg

Source Citation: Ancestry.com, Australia, Electoral Rolls, 1903-1980 (Provo, UT, USA, Ancestry.com Operations, Inc., 2010), Ancestry.com, Record for William Richard Manks.
<http://search.ancestry.com.au/cgi-bin/sse.dll?db=1207&h=23770140&indiv=try>.

Butfield Grave St Johns Cemetery Auscemindex

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Butfield Grave St Johns Cemetery Auscemindex.png

Person: Kay, Rosalind Sarah

Charles Glasson 1836 -Sharyn O'Neill

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Charles Glasson 1836 -Sharyn O'Neill.jpg

Person: Glasson, Charles

Demolished For The Public Good

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Demolished For The Public Good.pptx

[not linked to people, facts, or sources]

Edward Charles Glasson owner Anne Standen

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Edward Charles Glasson owner Anne Standen.jpg

Person: Glasson, Charles

Federal Coach Factory

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Federal Coach Factory.jpg

Person: Kay, William

Good Street School of Arts.

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Good Street School of Arts.jpg

Person: Kay, William

GP1735 Good Street.2_InPixio

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\GP1735 Good Street.2_InPixio.tif

Person: Kay, William

GP847 Alderman William Kay Granville Council

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\GP847 Alderman William Kay Granville Council.jpg

Person: Kay, William

New South Wales, Australia, St John's Parramatta, Marriages, 1790-1966 - William Arthur Martin

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\New South Wales, Australia, St John's Parramatta, Marriages, 1790-1966 - William Arthur Martin.jpg

Source Citation: Ancestry.com, New South Wales, Australia, St. John's Parramatta, Marriages, 1790-1966 (Provo, UT, USA, Ancestry.com Operations, Inc., 2015), Ancestry.com, Reference Number: REG/MAR/10; Description: Vol 10, 1924-1929; Parish: St. John's Anglican Church Parramatta. Record for William Arthur Martin.
<http://search.ancestry.com.au/cgi-bin/sse.dll?db=60735&h=3276&indiv=try>.

St Johns Church 2

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\St Johns Church 2.jpg

Person: Butfield, Lydia

Stanley Broughton Kay WW2 War Service

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Stanley Broughton Kay WW2 War Service.JPG

Person: Kay, Stanley Broughton

Sydney, Australia, Anglican Parish Registers, 1814-2011 - Gladys May Butfield

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Sydney, Australia, Anglican Parish Registers, 1814-2011 - Gladys May Butfield.jpg

Source Citation: Sydney, Australia, Anglican Parish Registers, 1814-2011 (Lehi, UT, USA, Ancestry.com Operations, Inc., 2017), Ancestry.com, Anglican Church Diocese of Sydney; Sydney, New South Wales, Australia; Baptism, Burial, Confirmation, Marriage and composite registers in the Anglican Church Diocese of Sydney Archives. Record for Gladys May Butfield.
<http://search.ancestry.com.au/cgi-bin/sse.dll?db=61177&h=900297496&indiv=try>.

Source Citation: Sydney, Australia, Anglican Parish Registers, 1814-2011 (Lehi, UT, USA, Ancestry.com Operations, Inc., 2017), Ancestry.com, Anglican Church Diocese of Sydney; Sydney, New South Wales, Australia; Baptism, Burial, Confirmation, Marriage and composite registers in the Anglican Church Diocese of Sydney Archives. Record for Edgar James Rigby.
<http://search.ancestry.com.au/cgi-bin/sse.dll?db=61177&h=297496&indiv=try>.

Sydney, Australia, Anglican Parish Registers, 1814-2011 - Richard Hunt

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Sydney, Australia, Anglican Parish Registers, 1814-2011 - Richard Hunt.jpg

Source Citation: Sydney, Australia, Anglican Parish Registers, 1814-2011 (Lehi, UT, USA, Ancestry.com Operations, Inc., 2017), Ancestry.com, Anglican Church Diocese of Sydney; Sydney, New South Wales, Australia; Baptism, Burial, Confirmation, Marriage and composite registers in the Anglican Church Diocese of Sydney Archives. Record for Richard Henry Hunt. <http://search.ancestry.com.au/cgi-bin/sse.dll?db=61177&h=35131&indiv=t>ry.

Thelma A G Kay

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Thelma A G Kay.jpg

Person: Kay, Thelma Agnes Granvilline

Thelma A G Kay_InPixio

File Location: C:\Users\June\Desktop\Kay William_2018-02-16 Media\Thelma A G Kay_InPixio.jpg

Person: Kay, Thelma Agnes Granvilline

Photo Album for William Kay

William Kay

Birth: 06 Oct 1859

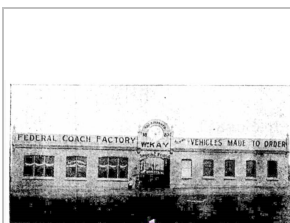

Death: 10 Dec 1941

Marriage: 1886

Father: Thomas Kay

Mother: Elizabeth Pearce

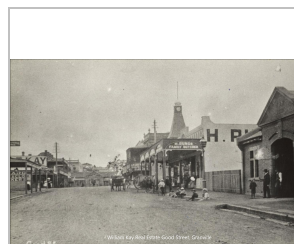

Spouse: Lydia Butfield

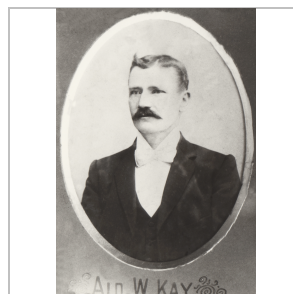

Federal Coach Factory

Good Street School of Arts.

GP1735 Good
Street.2_InPixio

GP847 Alderman William
Kay Granville Council

Index of Individuals

B

Butfield, George Frederick: 2

Butfield, Lydia: 1,2,8,12,20

C

Cox, Lorenz Emily: 3

G

Glasson, Charles: 12

J

Jeffery, Stephen: 12

K

Kay, Albert Horatio: 1,2

Kay, Alice: 12

Kay, Amy Cordelia Butfield: 1,3

Kay, Norman Federal: 1,2

Kay, Rosalind Sarah: 1,2

Kay, Stanley Broughton: 1,3

Kay, Thelma Agnes Granvilline: 1,3

Kay, Thomas: 1,2,12,20

Kay, William: 1,2,8,20

Kay, William Shakespeare: 1,3

L

Lawrence, Honor: 1,12

N

Norford, Sarah Ann: 2

O

Olson, Frederick Wentworth: 3

P

Pearce, Alexander: 1,12

Pearce, Elizabeth: 1,2,12,20

Y

Yorke, Ernest Reginald: 3